'FRANCIS THE BEST

Above: Trevor Francis acclaims the cheers of the City fans after scoring his first goal for his new club at Stoke (pictured below).

TREVOR Francis feared for his England future in the later stages of his career at Nottingham Forest.

He was being asked to play a winger-cum-midfield role and he admits:

"It wasn't doing my England chances any good. I didn't want to play in midfield."

However that wasn't the reason Britain's first £1 million footballer left

'My chairman, Peter Swales, told me after he'd watched Trevor Francis' fantastic debut that his hand won't shake quite so much if he's asked to sign any more big cheques' — Manchester City boss John Bond.

Forest to join Manchester City in what was his second seven-figure move.

Indeed he paid the biggest tribute possible to the Forest management duo of Brian Clough and Peter Taylor when he said:

"They are the best management team in the business and I want to thank them for bringing my game on

IS OF THE LOT'

STRIKING sensation
Trevor Francis reveals all about his £1 million move to Manchester City.

Manchester City manager John Bond (left) and his chairman Peter Swales are all smiles: "Trevor Francis will play a very big part in taking City back to the big time," says John.

while I was there."

No, the simple truth was that Forest couldn't afford to keep the England star.

Says Forest manager Brian Clough: "We had to balance the books after spending £1½ million during the summer and we couldn't afford to turn down City's offer."

No one was more happy about Forest's plight than City boss John Bond because it meant he finally got his man...

"I went after Peter Barnes, Joe Jordan and Justin Fashanu, but in Trevor Francis I have the best of the lot," he declared.

'I had made up my mind to go to Manchester — whether it was with City or United' — Trevor Francis.

It's a statement few would dare challenge — especially after Trevor's magical debut for his new club in which he scored twice and set-up the third in a 3-1 victory over Stoke.

Speaking about his first game in City colours Trevor said:

"I never expected to do anything like that.

"My main objective was just to play reasonably well and settle into the new routine because the first game is always the hardest.

"I'll never forget my £1 million debut for Forest against Ipswich at Portman Road.

"After 20 minutes the fans were chanting 'what a load of rubbish'.

"I didn't give them the same opportunity this time!"

Trevor admitted he was apprehensive before the game because he hadn't even trained with his new team mates.

But he says: "I was very impressed with City and what was more important to me was the attitude of the players. They love to go forward.

"John Bond was great in his team talk because he told us to get forward in numbers and I like that sort of positive approach.

"It was very encouraging to see our midfield players wanting to get into striking positions."

Continued Trevor: "I won lots of honours with Forest and I'm hoping to do the same with City.

"The club gets tremendous support and is crying out for success. I hope to be part of it."

And Trevor is confident he can cope with the 'pressure' of another big money move:

"I know I can handle it.

"When I left Birmingham for Forest for £1 million I had doubts because I was the first player to cost that much.

"Since then other players have moved for bigger fees.

"Every player who has moved for a seven-figure fee has said that no one is worth that kind of money and I think I agree, but I don't fix the fees."

Trevor admits he had an idea that money troubles were behind his move but he says:

"The move to City came about simply because Forest accepted their offer and because I was very impressed with John Bond.

"In fact it was Manchester United who started the ball rolling two months before when United manager Ron Atkinson met Brian Clough and they agreed a deal.

"It didn't materialise, but I must admit I had made up my mind to go to Manchester — whether it was to join United or City.

"I'm delighted it was City."

Mary has Spurs in stitches!

TOTTENHAM fan Mary Donaldson (pictured above) has recognised the club's FA Cup success in a novel way.

Mary, 16, who lives at Yaxley near Peterborough, has crocheted a bed cover containing all the players' names.

Who's her Tottenham favourite? "Match columnist Glenn Hoddle, of course," says Mary whose father Andy, played centre-forward for Newcastle and Middlesbrough in the early fifties.

Allen to lead England

WEST Ham's Paul Allen, the youngest player to appear in an FA Cup Final, is expected to lead England youths in the World Youth Championships being held in Australia next month.

He's the most experienced player in the 18-strong party who will open their qualifying group matches against the Cameroon in Sydney on October 3.

Also in England's group are the holders, Argentina, and host country Australia.

This is the first time that England have reached the Finals and they are expected to qualify for the quarter finals, with two teams going through from each group.

The other groups are: Group A — America, Uruguay, Poland and Qatar; Group B — Rumania, Brazil, Italy and South Korea; Group C — West Germany, Mexico, Spain and Egypt.

The England squad is: Allen (West Ham), Kendall (Aston Villa), Banfield (C. Palace), Bennett (Bolton), Cooke (Sunderland), Crosby (Grimsby), Finnigan (Fulham), Greenall (Blackpool), Kinsey (Man. City), Muir (QPR), Pates and Robson (Arsenal), Southey (Tottenham), Small (Luton), Wallace (Southampton), Webb (Reading).

Liverpool re-union

SWANSEA manager John Toshack continues to strengthen his First Division squad with players with Liverpool pedigrees.

Following the signing of defender Colin Irwin from Liverpool, Toshack has bought Blackpool's Max Thompson who was once a colleague of his at Anfield.

Defender Thompson has been at Blackpool three seasons, following just one League appearance for Liverpool.

He cost £40,000 which was the price Toshack received from Third Division Carlisle for defender David Rushbury, who was previously with Sheffield Wednesday.

Just the ticket for Saints

SOUTHAMPTON'S season ticket sales topped £950,000 for the second successive year.

Newly-promoted West Ham banked in excess of £932,000, and both Aston Villa and Tottenham topped the £750,000 mark.

On the other side of the coin, little Scunthorpe in the Fourth Division, had to be satisfied with pre-season sales of just £300.

Variety's the name of the game

VARIETY is the name of the game this season.

The Variety Club of Great Britain — together with their sponsors Omega Chewing Gum — have announced a new award scheme designed to reward entertaining football.

And at the same time it will benefit under-privileged children . . .

Each month a panel of judges — made up from football, showbusiness, the Variety Club and football writers — will select the team which in their opinion has produced the most entertaining football.

Monthly trophies will be awarded and each of the nine winning teams will be invited to a gala dinner when the 'Team of the Year' will be announced.

And in the first year, the sponsors — Smiths Food Group, through their new Omega chewing gum brand — will provide five 'Sunshine Coaches'.

Four coaches will carry the names of monthly award winners and the fifth will carry the name of the 'Team of the Year' and be given to a home for under-privileged children in the vicinity of the team concerned.

Speaking at the launch of the new scheme, former President of FIFA and chairman of the judges panel, Sir Stanley Rous said:

"There is no substitute for skill and professional footballers must be made to realise that it is their job to provide entertainment. If they don't the customers won't pay the money."

Brooking's big fear

WEST Ham and England star Trevor Brooking has warned of the danger of pricing the game out of the fans pocket.

And he has hit out at the system employed over big transfer fees.

Says Trevor: "I'd like to see less 'hire-purchase' transfer fees and I'd like to see them re-paid in one season.

"In the end football will be no career at all if we allow it to become too commercialised.

"The danger is pricing the game out of the pocket of the supporters.

"And on the subject of the fans I'd like to see much more family involvement on the terraces.

"And to that end — and to help stamp out hooliganism — what we need is more attractive football.

"I want to see players going out with style and pride."

Trevor airs these views and many more in a short television series called 'Sit Up And Listen' due to be screened by Thames Television each night for seven days in the week beginning September 21.

The programmes — aimed at the older teenage and above age bracket — will go out as the last transmission of the day.

One goal down!

CHESTER goalkeeper Grenville Millington had a smashing time in his side's home League Cup clash with Plymouth!

With the first round tie neatly balanced at 2-2 with 12 minutes left, he collided with a goal post and brought the net crashing around his ears.

Groundstaff spent six minutes desperately trying to re-erect the goal, but in the end the referee decided to sound the 'Last Post' and abandon the first leg match.

Rothman's roll of honour

ENFIELD, who went the furthest of the non-League clubs in the FA Cup last season, are one of the six latest winners of the Rothmans Football Awards.

The awards are revealed in the latest edition of the Rothmans Football Yearbook which is now firmly established as the 'bible' of soccer.

The other winners are Manchester City manager John Bond, West Brom's talented midfield player Bryan Robson, Ipswich skipper Mick Mills, Exeter's Tony Kellow, the country's top scorer last season, and Dundee United boss Jim McLean.

The new edition provides comprehensive coverage of last season's English and Scottish football — including line-ups, scorers and attendances of all domestic League and Cup matches as well as results of qualifying games played in the World Cup and major European cup competitions.

Published by Queen Anne Press, it costs £7.95 (cased) and £5.95 (limp).

'Wolves move can take me to Spain'

SAYS JOE GALLAGHER

Wolves skipper Joe Gallagher. He hopes his new club can help him achieve his dream of a place in the World Cup Finals with England.

JOE Gallagher believes that his £350,000 move to Wolves could be his passport to a World Cup Finals place with England.

The England 'B' international declared: "If Wolves can achieve something this season I have a chance of going to Spain—if England make it."

Joe, who joined Wolves after 11 years with Birmingham, added: "Blues' have never been successful and I'm sure that hasn't helped my England career."

"I've always said that if Trevor Francis had started his career with a successful team instead of Birmingham he'd have won 100 England caps already."

"If Wolves can finish high up in the League or enjoy a good cup run, England manager Ron Greenwood could be tempted to come and look at me."

'The England No 5 shirt is up for grabs'

"There's no doubt that the number five shirt is up for grabs. I mean no disrespect to Dave Watson, but I want to be challenging with Ipswich Town's Russell Osman and Terry Butcher."

"My first priority is to make myself a success and play well."

"I believe that Wolves stand more chance than my old team because there are some tremendously skilful players at Molineux."

"That was the first thing that struck me when I joined them. Players like Kenny Hibbitt and Andy Gray have fantastic skills."

"The lads have the ability to win things — all they need now is to believe in themselves."

Joe's enthusiasm for his new team was one of the reasons why Wolves manager John Barnwell made him skipper of the side soon after signing.

"I was surprised because there are one or two experienced players already there. Derek Parkin, Kenny Hibbitt, Peter Daniel and Geoff Palmer are all well qualified for the job."

Match writer Anthony Hawkswell turns the spotlight on new Wolves skipper Joe Gallagher . . .

"But perhaps the players needed a new face to shake the place up," added Joe.

His first match as skipper of the side went like a dream, with a 1-0 victory over European Champions Liverpool on the opening day of the season.

"Although we slipped a little after that it was great to get my new career off to such a memorable start," said Joe.

The opportunity to start a new career with Wolves came right out of the blue for the former Birmingham skipper.

He admitted: "I never thought manager Jim Smith would sell me."

"After such a long time with one club it's been quite a shock to the system uprooting myself and moving on."

"It seems strange driving a different way to work in the morning and not seeing the same faces. It will take me a little time to get used to my new team-mates."

"Obviously I've got mixed feelings about leaving 'Blues' — they were very good to me."

"I built up a good rapport with the supporters at St Andrews and I hope the Molineux faithful will accept me in the same way."

"But now I'm committed to helping Wolves achieve some success this term and enhance my chances of going to Spain," added the 26-year-old.

Joe's hopes were hit by defeats for Wolves against Southampton and Leeds — and by England's result in Norway.

"I mustn't let those results affect my form. I still have everything to play for," said Joe.

WORLD CUP LATEST

Under pressure from Norwegian defender Berntsen, Manchester City's new signing Trevor Francis just misses the target.

MATCH WEEKLY COLUMNIST
PAUL MARINER REFLECTS
ON ENGLAND'S SAD
NIGHT IN NORWAY

'We must salvage
some pride at Wembley'

WE have let the country, the manager and ourselves down.

There can be no excuses for the devastating World Cup defeat in Norway, but I feel manager Ron Greenwood has been unfairly criticised for his part in our downfall.

His job was simply to select the team. After that it was up to us, and on the night we let him down badly.

For the players, life goes on with League football, but the manager faces a difficult two months during which our World Cup fate will be decided.

That fate now lies in the hands of others, when really it should be in the hands of England. All we can do now is keep our fingers crossed.

It's difficult to put into words the feeling after the final whistle had signalled what could be the end of our World Cup hopes.

In the dressing room there was a stunned silence and total dejection. Nobody could really believe it... it seemed like a nightmare.

Then comes the personal inquests as you play over and over in your own mind different situations.

I roomed with Ipswich team-mate Mick Mills and we spent most of the night talking about the game and trying to figure out what went wrong.

Trying to remedy the problem is the job of the coaches and it's up to the people to form their own opinions.

All I know is that, as in Switzerland a few months before, we conceded silly goals in a five minute spell after making such a competent start.

We made the ideal start with an early goal from Bryan Robson. Then it was just a matter of building from there.

They never looked like scoring until they fluked an equaliser just before half-time, and before we knew where we were, Terry McDermott unfortunately failed to control a cross and the ball fell invitingly to the feet of Thoresen — probably their best player.

The media and the public believe that teams like Norway are pushovers, but that's not the case at this level.

They have several quality players in their side and we knew how difficult it was going to be. There was never any question of us underestimating them.

Whatever the reasons for our shock defeat, it does seem strange that we can dominate European football at club level, then fail to produce the goods when it matters in internationals.

I just hope we get a chance at Wembley against Hungary to salvage some of our pride because failing to get to Spain could have a devastating effect on our game.

I'm the eternal optimist. While there is a chance, there is always hope, but at the moment it looks a very tall order.

Thankfully, my Scottish mate John Wark didn't gloat over the result. It looks as though he'll be in the Spanish sunshine next year, but our Dutchmen Frans Thijssen and Arnold Muhren are in a similar position to England.

Frans in particular had several consoling words for myself, Mick Mills and Russell Osman when we arrived back at Portman Road from what was probably the worst football experience of my life.

Glimmer

ENGLAND, having missed out on Argentina on goal difference, could yet reach the World Cup Finals in Spain next year by that method despite the disaster in Norway.

Their hopes may well hinge on the outcome of next Wednesday's vital clash in Bucharest between their main rivals, Rumania and Hungary.

If Rumania win, then an England victory over Hungary in the final group match at Wembley in November could see Ron Greenwood's side through on goal difference, even if the Hungarians win their other two matches — at home to Switzerland and Norway.

That would obviously be the best result for England, but there would still be a glimmer of hope if Hungary won.

Assuming Hungary take maximum points from the supposedly weaker nations, then Rumania would need to defeat

WORLD

Switzerland twice to eliminate England before the Wembley finale.

If they drop a point, then the door would be open for England to qualify on goal difference with a victory over Hungary.

A draw next week would be the worst possible result from England's point of view.

They would then be relying solely on the efforts of Norway and Switzerland to leave them with an opportunity of saving face at Wembley on November 18.

Rumania would have to drop two points against the Swiss and Hungary one against Switzerland or Norway to give England a chance.

But should they both take maximum points — three points would be enough for Rumania — then it would be 'goodbye' for England and not 'Ole', even before the Hungarian visit.

MATCH WEEKLY 15

ABOVE: North East rivals... now team-mates. Here I am in action for Middlesbrough against Newcastle. Duelling with me is my Liverpool team-mate Alan Kennedy (right) in his Newcastle days!

BELOW: Facing up against one of the best. Malcolm Macdonald unleashes a shot during a Middlesbrough v Newcastle game. I can only watch.

SUSPENDED — that's how I started Middlesbrough's triumphant return to the First Division.

I had to sit it out on the sidelines and watch as my team-mates made a winning start to the 1974-75 season with a 2-0 win at Birmingham.

I was young, hot-headed and got involved in things I shouldn't have. As a result I collected too many bookings and was suspended for one match.

I used to think I could change the course of the game by opening my mouth, but it only got me into trouble with the referees.

I realise now that it doesn't help you or your team and I like to think I've settled down since I joined Liverpool. In many ways it was all part of growing up.

Sitting in the stands that day I can remember thinking to myself: 'How am I going to get back into the team?' They played so well.

But Jack Charlton did include me for the next game against Carlisle... and we lost!

It was very depressing for me because they had done so well without me and as soon as I came back we slumped to a 2-0 home defeat.

But I gradually got my confidence back and the season took off for us. We finished sixth and reached the Fifth Round of the League Cup and Sixth Round of the FA Cup.

And on our way in the League Cup we beat mighty Liverpool at Anfield!

'But I soon learned I couldn't change the game by opening my mouth'

HOT-HEADED!

All their star names were on show — Ray Clemence, Emllyn Hughes, Kevin Keegan, Steve Highway, Ray Kennedy, and Ian Callaghan — but we sneaked through with a last minute goal from sweeper Willie Maddren.

My only regret about that 1-0 win was that more people weren't able to see it. There was a bus strike in the city and just under 25,000 — less than half the Anfield usual — turned up.

We finally went out of the competition in a replay at Old Trafford against Manchester United. They won 3-0 after goals from Stuart Pearson, Sammy McIlroy and Lou Macari.

I must admit I was surprised how easy I found First Division football. I thought it would be much harder.

But you can play more in the higher level and that suited my style.

And other people must have been impressed by my form because in October I was selected by Scotland for a friendly international against East Germany.

I can remember it was a miserable night and I didn't fancy playing that much. Hampden Park was cold and covered with icy water.

But we beat them 3-0 with a Tommy Hutchison penalty and goals from Kenny Burns and Kenny Dalglish.

That match gave me the false impression that international football was easy — I learned soon afterwards that friendlies like that are completely different to competitive matches!

For just a couple of weeks later I was picked for the European Championship qualifier against Spain at Hampden and we lost 2-1.

That was a different kettle of fish completely. We went one up thanks to Billy Bremner and then Tommy Hutchison missed a penalty.

If 'Hutch' had scored then there would have been no looking back, but the miss gave the Spaniards confidence and they stuck two goals past 'keeper David Harvey.

I played just one more game for Scotland (against Sweden) and didn't get another chance until I joined Liverpool.

On the club front Middlesbrough had proved that they were good enough to hold their own in the First Division.

In fact I believe that if the directors had allowed manager Jack Charlton to take the club into debt and buy a couple of players we'd have been a very good team.

We were just two class players short of becoming serious challengers and the club should have let Jack make the most of the set-up he'd built.

Middlesbrough have always had an unfashionable tag and I know they don't get big crowds, but there was a chance of hitting the big time with that side.

Unfortunately Jack Charlton was on his way and the team began to break up. I'll tell you more about that next week . . .

● Graeme Souness was talking to Anthony Hawksell.

Left: Tommy Hutchison — his miss from the spot could have cost Scotland victory over Spain.

NEXT WEEK: Barracked by 'Boro' supporters and my move to Liverpool . . . remember it's only in MATCH.

MAN in a million Trevor Francis took just 36 minutes before he began repaying the huge fee Manchester City paid for him.

That's how long it took him to get on the scoresheet in his debut for City against Stoke.

And when he added a second to seal the points it left no-one in doubt that it was money well-spent.

City look good for another three points on Saturday when they face Birmingham — their new star striker's first League club!

I've forecast a result for that match and nine others from up and down the country.

And if you can beat me at my own game you can win £5.

My special guest opponent this week is 16-year-old Steven Bell of Edinburgh, Scotland.

You can see Steven's predictions alongside mine in the special panel.

If you would like the chance to see your predictions in print, like Steven, all you have to do is send in your name, age and address — together with a black and white photograph of yourself — and most importantly your home telephone number.

All the entries we receive will be kept in a special file and each week one lucky reader will be picked to compete against me in the magazine.

Points are awarded according to how accurate the predictions are and if you manage to score more than me you are a winner.

Send your entries to: Stratton on Saturday, Match Weekly, Midgate House, Midgate, Peterborough.

● Bad luck to my second challenger, Ian Johnson, of Manchester, who lost 11 points to four on the second Saturday of the season.

Pictured left is my special guest opponent this week, Steven Bell, whose favourite teams are Hibernian and Leeds and favourite players Jackie McNamara and Arthur Graham.

HERE are Paul Stratton's selected matches for this Saturday, together with those of his special guest opponent.

There's a space for you to fill in your forecasts and a column for the actual result.

Award yourself two points for every score you get right and one point if you get the result right (i.e. home win, away win, draw), but the scoreline wrong.

Carry your points total forward each week and at the end of the season you will know who the champion forecaster is.

Dad didn't pull any strings

KEVIN BOND reveals the motive behind his move to Man City

KEVIN Bond is reunited with his famous father at Manchester City.

But the former Norwich defender says it is the appeal of the club rather than big John that has brought him to Maine Road for £350,000.

He would have preferred a complete break from his manager/father after seven footballing years together, but as he stresses:

"To join a great club like Manchester City is a chance in a million and one that I wasn't prepared to miss.

"So the fact that my father is the manager is really secondary to me.

"I would have preferred to have made a complete break from him, but he's the manager of one of the biggest clubs in the country, and one that I am delighted to join.

"If he had been manager of one of the smaller clubs then I wouldn't have teamed up with him again."

But 24-year-old Kevin, just back after a successful season with Seattle Sounders where he set a North American League record of ten consecutive penalties, insists that he owes his father everything and intends to repay the confidence shown in him.

"There were problems being the manager's son in my early days with Bournemouth and Norwich when perhaps I was somewhat naive.

"There were the usual grumblings about being a favourite and that I was living on my dad's reputation.

"I had to work very hard at my game in the early days to prove that I could make a career in football, but there were times when I could have thrown in the towel.

"It was then that my father gave me a lot of stick and kept me plugging away.

"But in the last two years at Norwich, which led to England 'B' honours, that hard work produced results and I think I proved to the fans that I was worth my place in the side.

"Now I hope I can show the City fans that I am able to do a good job for them when I'm given the chance.

"With the form City have shown in the opening games, I'm going to face a hard time getting a regular place in the side.

"There's a good blend of experience and youth in the side and with the addition of Trevor Francis, City must have a good chance of some success.

"I want to be a part of that success, which will hopefully lead to England recognition."

Right: New Manchester City signing Kevin Bond: "I would have preferred a clean break from my father, but to join a great club like Manchester City is a chance in a million."

Above: Kevin Reeves — he was Kevin Bond's team mate at Norwich and now they are together again.

EVERTON's Mickey Thomas deserves his place in the Welsh team according to Kenneth Benham (14) of Ashton-in-Makerfield, Lancs.

STAR GALLERY

WOLVES midfielder Peter Daniel is the favourite of Jane Edwards (15) of Thorpe Hamlet, Norwich. She says: "He's a great all round player."

"JIMMY Rimmer's consistency between the posts is an inspiration to the rest of the Aston Villa team," says John Parsons (15) of Erdington, Birmingham.

ARGENTINA'S Diego Maradona is the favourite of Clifford Britton (16) of Crawley, Sussex, because: "He's the best!"

SOUTHAMPTON and England defender Dave Watson deserves a place in our 'Star Gallery' because "he's so consistent", says Paul Foster (11) of Knaresborough, Yorks.

Arthur Graham (extreme right) sends the ball into the net for one of his three goals against Wolves.

WHAT A START!

And that's what they got during the first week of the season in the First Division.

The 33 matches produced no fewer than 99 goals . . . that's an average of three goals per game.

And that impressive figure represents the best goal return in an opening week for more than ten years.

Six teams — Birmingham, Southampton, Stoke, Swansea, West Brom and West Ham — hit four or more goals in their opening three matches.

And there were no fewer than five hat-tricks . . . from Bob Latchford (Swansea), David Cross (West Ham), Arthur Graham (Leeds), Cyrille Regis (West Brom), and Ian Wallace (Nottingham Forest).

No doubt the Football League would like to believe that the introduction of three points for a win has led to this goal bonanza.

It may simply be a case of coincidence . . . but whatever the reasons for the enterprise, it's an encouraging start.

West Ham's David Cross, the First Division's top scorer after the first week with five goals, feels it's far too early to pinpoint any particular reason for the goal feast.

"Obviously, all the players are aware of three points for a win, but then the defenders are also well aware that they have got to stop teams getting three points against them," says David, who blasted Tottenham aside with a four-goal show at White Hart Lane.

"One will have a better guide as to the success of the extra point for a win a bit later in the season.

"There wasn't three points for a win the last time more goals were scored, so no doubt everybody then was looking for reasons."

Leeds' Arthur Graham, whose best start to the season coincided with his axing from Scotland's World Cup squad for the match against Sweden, is somewhat bemused by the figures.

"The three points for a win might have something to do with it, but it's probably just one of those things in football which is difficult to explain," says Arthur, who took his tally to four with a hat-trick against Wolves . . . and that's one more than he scored in the whole of last season.

"From the Leeds point of view we are just going out to win matches and the introduction of three points has made no real difference to our approach.

"It's my best-ever start to a season and I've been lucky enough to be in the right spot at the right time to put away the goals.

"Hopefully I can keep the run going and get my place back in the Scotland squad."

Bertschin from the

NEW Norwich striker Keith Bertschin has dropped into the Second Division to escape the Birmingham 'boo-boys'.

Keith admits that one of the main reasons for his £200,000 move from Birmingham was the treatment he received from the fans on the terraces at St Andrews last season.

"I could have stayed with Birmingham. In fact manager Jim Smith told me that I would start the new season in the first team," said Keith.

"But the treatment I received from a small section of the fans did upset me.

"It got to such a stage that I was glad when the manager dropped me last term," he admitted.

"The criticism was very difficult for me to shake off and it was one of the reasons why I left.

"Everything was okay while Birmingham were doing well last season, but once things started to Birmingham's Dutch international striker Tony Van Mierlo, who scored a dream debut goal against Everton.

Double Dutch Van Mierlo

BIRMINGHAM have followed Ipswich Town's lead and gone double Dutch this season.

'Blues' manager Jim Smith came back from a pre-season shopping trip in Holland with Dutch internationals Tony Van Mierlo and Bud Brocken.

And he no doubt hopes that the pair can have the same impact as their Dutch countrymen Frans Thijssen and Arnold Muhren.

Striker Tony repaid part of his £150,000 fee on his debut for Birmingham against Everton when he scored after just four minutes.

And the cross for his goal came from his former Willem II partner Bud Brocken!

Says Tony: "Even though we lost the game 3-1 it was a great way to start my Birmingham career. Scoring a goal on your debut is something a player dreams about."

And Tony had plenty of time to contemplate how he would start his English career, because his transfer to Birmingham was more or less fixed up a year before he arrived at St Andrews.

's escape 'boo-boys'

ONE out... one in! Match writer Anthony Hawkswell meets new Norwich striker Keith Bertschin and the man who replaced him at Birmingham, Tony Mierlo.

go wrong the finger was pointed at me.

"The treatment they gave me was un-called for and I was upset by it," admitted Keith.

"But that apart I had four smashing years with Birmingham and the decision to leave was a very difficult one."

Keith decided to agree terms with Norwich even though he rediscovered his goalscoring touch with five goals in six pre season games.

"Norwich are ambitious to make a quick return to the top flight and I hope I can help them.

"And if we don't make it back at our first attempt we've only ourselves to blame," said the striker who started his career with East Anglian rivals Ipswich.

"Norwich are a footballing side and our only problem could be mixing it, we've got to learn to knuckle down.

"I'll never forget Birmingham's first game in their 1979-80 promotion year. We were leading 3-0 at half-time against Fulham and finished up 4-3 losers.

"That defeat taught me that you've got to fight your way out of the Second Division," said Keith, who signed a three year contract with Norwich on his 25th birthday.

And Keith warned that Norwich City's promotion hopes could come unstuck against the less fashionable Second Division sides.

"Our attitude has got to be right for every game — it's no good going into a match against a lesser side thinking we've got it won.

"We'll be able to rise to the occasion against the better teams — it's the smaller ones we should fear," added Keith.

Norwich players will agree with Keith's sentiments following their disastrous opening day when they crashed 4-1 at newly promoted Rotherham.

"We just didn't play that day. We went through the motions and paid for it. It should have taught us a valuable lesson."

Above: New Norwich striker Keith Bertschin — the fans at Birmingham drove him away from St Andrews.

WHO AM I?

Coventry was my second Football League club. Now turn to page 33 for the next clue.

Dutch — that's lo and Brocken

He explained: "I'd just signed a two year contract with Willem when I heard that Birmingham were interested. So I gave them my word that if I decided to come to England I would talk to them first.

"At the time of Birmingham's initial interest things looked bright at Willem, but later on they hit financial problems and they needed the cash," said Tony.

Tony got to know all about his new club from former 'Blues' utility man Jimmy Calderwood, who played for Willem last season.

"I looked out for their results last season and considering they'd just been promoted I thought the team did very well," said Tony.

The Dutchman's appetite for the English game was whetted by the success Frans Thijssen and Arnold Muhren were enjoying at Portman Road.

"I lost interest in playing in Holland. I wanted to play in front of bigger crowds," he admitted.

And the 24-year-old Dutch international has had little problem settling in to his new surroundings in the Midlands.

"Arriving with Bud has helped enormously. We've both been able to help each other."

Although he's only played a handful of games in this country the striker is in no doubt that it's a harder League to play in.

"It's so much more physical and a lot faster than in Holland.

"In England players are running about for the full 90 minutes whereas in Holland there can be intervals in the game where the pace is much slower."

But Tony, who's signed a two year contract with Birmingham, knows that there are two difficult seasons ahead of him.

"We've got to be satisfied with the same sort of League position that we finished in last season," he said.

"Three players have left the club and it's going to take some time before the new arrivals get used to each other.

"But I believe we should be in a position to start challenging for honours next term."

JOHNSON aims to repay NEWPORT

FORMER Manchester City and Crystal Palace midfielder Jeff Johnson was not flattered by the fact that he was at the centre of one of the summer's biggest transactions involving a Third Division club.

Newport County had to pay £60,000 for his services just five years after he had joined Sheffield Wednesday on a free transfer.

Jeff felt a little aggrieved at the size of the price tag, but Newport manager Len Ashurst, ironically the man who signed him when manager of Wednesday, wasn't frightened by the fee.

He stepped in to sign the midfield dynamo for a second time in a bid to boost his club's promotion aims, and Jeff immediately responded with the winner on his debut against Chesterfield.

Jeff is glad to be back in his native Wales, even though he was hoping to stay in the Second Division.

"I would have preferred to stay in the Second, but the chance to return to Wales was too good to be missed," he says.

"Newport had a good run in Europe last season and I'm hoping I'll be back in the Second Division next year."

Jeff admits he was surprised that Newport came in for him with such a price tag round his neck.

"Considering I cost Wednesday nothing and had given five years' service, I thought they might have reduced the fee."

"Still I'm glad everything has worked out. I played a little while under Len Ashurst and I found him very straight and honest."

"Although it was my decision to leave Wednesday after failing to agree terms with manager Jack Charlton, I've got some fond memories of my time at Hillsborough."

Right: Jeff Johnson: "The chance to return to Wales was too good to be missed."

NORTHERN Ireland striker Billy Hamilton has his eyes fixed on next year's World Cup Finals from the unglamorous surroundings of the Third Division.

While players from the England and Scotland squads prepare for Spain in the top flight, the 24-year-old Burnley forward attempts to retain his international form miles away from the limelight.

But the new-found Irish talent doesn't believe the absence of regular top grade football is proving too much of a handicap.

And Scotland will vouch for that. He scored the winner against them on his international debut in Belfast last year to set the Irish on the way to the British Championship.

Then he repeated the dose in Glasgow a few months later as the Irish earned a vital World Cup point from a 1-1 draw.

"I know we don't get long together before international matches, but being involved with First Division players brings the best out of me," he says.

Tommy Docherty — one of Billy Hamilton's four different managers at QPR.

has his eye's SPAIN

"It may sound funny, but if anything it's easier in the First Division because you are allowed more time to express yourself.

"In the Third Division, defenders tend to rush in all the time — not giving you that much time on the ball."

The former Linfield forward speaks from experience, having played a handful of games in the First Division with Queen's Park Rangers before his £55,000 move to Burnley two seasons ago.

"Obviously I would love to get back into Division One, but I'm very happy at Burnley.

"I'm hoping I can go places with them and I certainly believe we have a very good chance of promotion this season", says Billy, who burst on to the First Division scene three years ago after Queen's Park Rangers had signed him from Linfield for £40,000.

Billy, who had helped Linfield clinch the Irish League 'double', quit university to fulfil his ambition of playing in the Football League.

"I had one year of a four-year teaching course to complete when QPR came in for me after seeing me play for the Irish youth team against Eire.

"Derby were also interested, but I was impressed with QPR and signed without having talks with Derby.

"But in the space of a few months at Loftus Road, QPR had three different men in charge after Frank Sibley had been sacked.

"There was Alec Stock, Steve Burtenshaw and Tommy Docherty. You can probably please two of them but not all the lot and so I became available for transfer.

"Burnley moved in and I've no regrets about coming here, even though we were relegated in my first season.

"If anything I am now reaping the benefits from all the coaching and hard work put in by QPR coach Theo Foley.

"When I moved to QPR I had only been used to part-time football, so I had to learn all the basics and get used to full time training."

'I WASN'T A FAILURE'

Striker Mick Harford, talks about his move to Bristol City after only eight months at Newcastle

New Bristol City signing Mick Harford: "A lot of great players have worn Newcastle's number nine shirt."

MICK Harford, sold by Newcastle after just a handful of matches, has declared: "I wasn't a failure."

Success-starved Geordie fans may think otherwise after just four goals in 19 League appearances last season following his £180,000 move from Lincoln.

But they have been weened on famous centre forwards like Jackie Milburn, Wyn Davies, Malcolm Macdonald and Peter Withe, and young Mick was unable to lay the ghosts to any great degree.

"I admit that I did feel the pressure when playing at home and probably that's why I didn't play too well," says Bristol City's new £150,000 striker.

"Newcastle is steeped in history and a lot of great players have worn the number nine shirt. I was always conscious of that.

"But I don't think I was a failure.

"I know I could have done a lot better but I felt I didn't play too badly away from home when the pressures weren't so great.

"I was looking forward to the start of this season when this surprise move to Bristol came about.

"Obviously I was disappointed because being from the North East I would have loved to have stayed and help the club achieve some success.

"But I'm not blaming the fans for my transfer. I made a lot of friends up there and I've left the club on the best of terms.

"I was there only about eight months but I feel I have learned a lot from my experience and I hope that I have left a better player."

The early signs are that Newcastle's loss is Bristol's gain.

He scored in his first three matches to help repay some of the faith shown in him by manager Bobby Houghton.

"I've not lost my confidence in front of goal and I hope I can continue among the goals to try and help City back into the Second Division," says the Sunderland-born player, who scored 41 goals in 115 matches for Lincoln.

"It wasn't a difficult decision to make once I had seen the set-up at Ashton Gate.

"There is Second or even First Division potential here and I hope I can be part of any future success.

"With no guarantee of first team football if I had stayed at Newcastle, this move has given me the chance of regular League football, which is what I want."

NEXT WEEK: Match talks to Imre Varadi — the man who has replaced Mick Harford in the Newcastle forward line.

Peter Withe (now Aston Villa) — just one of the many famous names to wear the Newcastle number nine shirt.

POWER

THERE's no sign of a let-up in the import of foreign stars into the First Division.

Eight new Continental faces were revealed in the first week of the season, if you include Liverpool's Rhodesian goalkeeper Bruce Grobbelaar.

Four others were actual newcomers to English football, Birmingham's Dutch strikers Tony Van Mierlo and Bud Brocken, Middlesbrough's Heini Otto, also from Holland, and Coventry's Belgian recruit Rudi Kaiser.

The other three, Swansea's Yugoslav defenders Dzemail Hadziabdic and Ante Rajkovic, and Notts County goalkeeper Raddy Avramovic, another player from Yugoslavia, graduated from the Second Division.

There are now more than twenty overseas players on the books of 15 First Division clubs, and 16 of them were on show in the opening week.

A total of nine different countries are now represented in the First Division, excluding the Home Countries, the latest being Finland whose international forward Aki Lahtinen has joined Notts County from champions Oulun for £120,000.

As yet, there are no Italians, Spaniards or West Germans on view, and that's unlikely to change while their wage levels remain so lucrative.

But wages and conditions in England are certainly favourable to players from the rest of Europe and parts of South America.

And with inflationary trends continuing in our domestic transfer market, managers will continue to search overseas for bargain buys.

Ipswich manager Bobby Robson must be the envy of most when considering that his talented Dutch pair of Frans Thijssen, last season's 'Footballer of the Year' and Arnold Muhren, cost a total of £350,000 from Twente.

The Spurs duo of Villa and Ardiles cost less than £700,000, which is also 'chicken feed' in the light of £1 million players.

For instance, the six Dutch players currently operating in the First Division cost less in total than Nottingham Forest's Justin Fashanu, Manchester United's Frank Stapleton or Man. City's Trevor Francis.

Those three strikers cost the tidy sum of £3 million . . . and for less than that outlay, 22 foreign players have been brought to these shores!

More and more of Britain's soccer bosses are turning to the . . .

Best of British

ALTHOUGH the four home nations will continue to have four separate teams I think they should form one joint team for special occasion matches.

My team would be: Shilton (England), Jones (Wales), Thompson (England), Gray F. (Scotland), McDermott (England), Coppel (England), Jordan (Scotland), Dalglish (Scotland), Keegan (England), James (Wales), Robertson (Scotland). Subs: McGrain (Scotland), Miller (Scotland), Hoddle (England), Nick Parry, Devizes, Wilts.

New system a success

THE longer break between last season and this certainly whetted the fans' appetite.

On opening day the atmosphere at the games was tremendous and if the all-action exciting games are repeated throughout the season it must be said three points for a win is a success.

Alastair Slade (13), Emsworth, Hants.

Transfer team-up

THREE Match readers have come up with teams of players who were transferred during the close season . . .

Clemence, Gidman, Gray, Johnston, Price, Lawrenson, Blair, Proctor, Jordan, Stapleton, Barnes, Fashanu.

Missing Frank

ARSENAL selling Frank Stapleton was terrible news. I'm sure all Arsenal fans will agree — especially those who went to the opening game of the season. We miss him now and will miss him even more as the season goes on.

Mark Franklin, Tottenham, London.

What price attacking football?

ALTHOUGH it is disgusting to see players being sold for fees of well over £1 million it is pleasing to see that most of the costly players — Gray, Francis, Reeves, Fashanu, Wallace and Archibald are all strikers.

However bad the actual fees are it shows clubs are attaching more value to attacking football.

Alistair Janusch, Windsor, Berks.

Stop picking on Ron!

I'm very upset at the criticism blasted at Ron Atkinson since he was appointed boss at Manchester United.

I agree with him that England should pick his new signing John Gidman and think he did very well in swopping him with Mike Peterborough.

NOTTS County will finish fifteenth in the First Division, go out in the quarter-finals of the FA Cup and reach the semi-finals of the League Cup. Tottenham will win the League while Swansea, Birmingham and Wolves will go down.

Kenneth Hamilton, South Carbrain, Scotland.

LIVERPOOL will win the League. Manchester City come second and Brighton, Middlesbrough and Notts County will go down. Nicholas Parker, Drayton, Norfolk.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES

'CLEM'

I'm sure I speak for all Liverpool supporters when I pay tribute to the wonderful service that England goalkeeper Ray Clemence gave to the 'Reds' during his 14 years association with the club.

On countless occasions his agility and handling played a major part in Liverpool's success.

Season 1978-79 was probably Clem's best.

He conceded only 14 League goals — of which only four were scored at Anfield.

Even so Ray was quick to point out that the Liverpool back four deserved much of the credit during that record-breaking season.

Now that Clemence has started a new career at Tottenham, all eyes will be on Bruce Grobbelar, but it will be extremely difficult for him to repeat the incredible success of his illustrious predecessor.

Ray Clemence is a goalkeeper who won special popularity with the Liverpool fans.

I just wish him lots of luck with his new club this season and look forward to seeing him back at Anfield when Liverpool entertain Spurs. He can be sure of an extra special reception that day.

Jordan in full flight

We were setting out on our holiday to Italy this year and who should be on our plane but Joe Jordan — on his way out to join AC Milan.

During the flight I was lucky enough to have a chat with him and get his autograph.

On arrival in Milan the airport had been invaded by 2,000 fans screaming 'Jordan, Jordan'.

I later saw Joe make his debut and he scored twice.

Sandro Monetti (13), Blackpool, Lancs.

Where will the honours go?

HERE's a few more of your predictions for this season . . .

Ipswich will win the League, Aston Villa the FA Cup (beating Southampton), West Ham the League Cup (beating Spurs), Leicester, Q.P.R., and Norwich will get promotion and Celtic will win the Scottish Premier title. Simon Belding (14), Stilton, Super Hibs!

HIBERNIAN are the best team in Scotland. Jackie McNamara and Ralph Callaghan should both be in the Scotland team. Hibs will win the Premier title this year and maybe the Scottish Cup too.

Jock Stein — get along to Easter Road.

George Peters, Polboth, West Lothian, Scotland.

Golden Goof!

LEICESTER will have no goalscoring problems this season . . . but Grimsby will have to tighten up their defence judging by the press clipping sent in by R. Ellis of Finchfield, Wolverhampton.

Watch Leicester go?

LEICESTER City may have dropped down to Division Two last season, but they are a side to watch very carefully.

Liverpool, Tottenham and Manchester United were all caught out by Leicester last season and I'm sure they will bounce back with talented players like Alan Young, Jim Melrose, Gary Lineker and Paul Frier in the side.

P.S. I support Liverpool.

Kennedy shocker

AS a Liverpool supporter I was shocked to read that Mark Lawrenson had taken the place of this year's European Cup hero, Alan Kennedy, in the Liverpool team. I like Mark Lawrenson, but I would like to see Alan in the side.

Sexton to leave Coventry?

HERE are my predictions for the coming season . . .

Division One: Wolves sell Andy Gray for a little over £1 million . . . Swansea reach the top ten, but fall away . . . Manchester United are champions with Ipswich and Spurs close-up . . . Dave Sexton leaves Coventry and Jimmy Sirrel is sacked by Notts County . . . West Ham and Notts County just survive relegation . . . Stoke, Wolves and Birmingham go down.

Division Two: Leicester sell Jim Melrose who goes back north of the border . . . Sheffield Wednesday, Blackburn Rovers and Q.P.R. get promotion . . . Oldham just survive, but Shrewsbury, Grimsby and Wrexham go down.

Division Three: David Kemp leaves Plymouth . . . the main five promotion candidates are Newport, Plymouth, Fulham, Brentford and Chesterfield — the latter three going up . . . Chester, Gillingham, Swindon and Doncaster go down.

Division Four: Peterborough, Northampton, Colchester and Bury (champions) go up.

Mark Amos, Whitechurch, Cardiff.

● More predictions next week.

Pathetic Leeds

SO all of a sudden Swansea are the best thing since Forest just because they beat Leeds.

I was at that match with thousands of other United fans and all we saw was a Third Division outfit play a very average game — the reason they won is because Leeds were so pathetic.
Craig Henry, Bradshaw, Yorks.

● Funny how defeat for your favourite team is never caused by the opposition playing well, isn't it?

Price — a pleasure to watch

I would like to pay tribute to Paul Price who left Luton for Spurs. I'm sure many people will join me in thanking him for the loyalty, good sportsmanship and great captaincy he showed at Luton. It was always a pleasure to watch him play.

Thanks a lot Paul and good luck. Ian Saunders (14), Harpenden, Herts.

Three-point blunder

AWARDING three points for a win and one point for a draw is the biggest mistake the League has ever made. Take the 3-3 draw between Ipswich and Sunderland on opening day — it was one of the most entertaining games you could wish to see, but the teams only got one point and found themselves two points adrift of teams who snatched an early goal and sat on their lead.

Ceri Locke (14),

Belt up Bond!

I'M sick and tired of reading about John Bond's impending signings in the papers. He was so busy talking he let both Peter Barnes and Justin Fashanu slip through the net. He's more interested in voicing his opinions than doing his job properly.

● He didn't do a bad job chatting up Trevor Francis to sign for City. Now it's time for you to eat your words . . . and you're booked for jumping the gun.

● Yes and pigs might fly. The only thing Brighton will have in the bag by Christmas is their turkey dinner! You are in the book.

Paisley's gone too far

BOB Paisley has gone too far. He has bought far too many players at one time and they have not played together long enough to maintain the high standards required at such a club.

World-class Masson the Tartan hero

ALLY'S Tartan Army is on the march . . .

Four years ago Scotland's happy fans were rehearsing their South American serenades as Ally MacLeod's side virtually booked their ticket to Argentina with a 3-1 defeat of Czechoslovakia at Hampden Park.

It was a night of celebration as the jubilant Scottish manager declared: "It was our best performance for years."

And he acclaimed midfield star Don Masson, now in America after helping Notts County back into the First Division, as 'world class'.

"He was the outstanding player on the pitch," added Ally.

Big Joe Jordan headed Scotland in front after 18 minutes and Asa Hartford added a second before half time.

Goals by Kenny Dalglish and Czech star Miroslav completed the scoring in the second half and Scotland had taken a decisive step towards their second successive appearance in the World Cup Finals.

But, as everyone knows, hysteria turned to despair in Argentina as Ally's Army trudged home, heads bowed, after embarrassing displays against Peru and Iran which even a victory over the eventual beaten finalists, Holland, could not repair.

Match Weekly takes a fascinating look back at important football events that took place this week in years gone by.

Former Notts County player Don Masson, who was described by ex-Scotland manager Ally MacLeod as 'world class'.

That Copenhagen thriller

"I'm an advocate of attacking football — but that was carrying it to the extremes."

That was how England manager Ron Greenwood reacted to the nail-biting 4-3 win in Denmark three years ago.

The Copenhagen thriller provided quite a scare for England's European Championship hopes against a Danish side that was not expected to provide much of a barrier in the qualifying stages.

But England came close to a dose of the Danish blues, despite taking an early two-goal lead with a couple of Kevin Keegan headers.

Denmark's answer to Keegan, the dynamic Allan Simonsen, began the home comeback with a penalty.

And before the interval Ajax player Arneson had levelled matters to put England's bid for Italy in jeopardy.

Bob Latchford, restored to England colours, grabbed a disputed third goal early in the second half and full back Phil Neal appeared to have put the match beyond reproach with a fourth goal.

However, little Simonsen had the last word with a third Danish goal near the end to set up a nerve-jangling finale.

UNTHINKABLE! Moore gives way to Hunter

EIGHT years ago the almost unthinkable happened . . . England dropped their skipper Bobby Moore.

Having already broken Billy Wright's record of 105 international caps, Bobby was dropped for the first time for the clash with Austria at Wembley.

Leeds' iron defender Norman Hunter took over Bobby's familiar sweeping role from where he had led England to their 1966 World Cup triumph.

Left: Martin Peters took over as England captain when Bobby Moore was dropped eight years ago.

His job as captain went to his West Ham colleague Martin Peters and England romped to a 7-0 victory with Mick Channon and Allan Clarke both scoring twice.

Martin Chivers, Tony Currie and Colin Bell got the others.

Bobby, who made his England debut back in 1962, returned for the match with Italy a few months later but the 1-0 defeat proved to be his farewell performance after 11 years and 108 caps.

Tommy Hutchison (Man City) v West Brom, Division One, Maine Road, Sat, Aug 19, 1981. Final score: City 2 West Brom 1.

TOMMY Hutchison, the mercurial Manchester City midfield general, conjured up a magical goal to set Maine Road alight on the opening day of the season.

West Brom were the victims of Tommy's 14th minute gem, a simply engineered build-up that produced a clinical execution from the rangy Scot.

The former Coventry star recalls the goal that ranks as a close second to his FA Cup final header against Tottenham in his personal gallery of great moments.

"I picked up the ball just in our half of the field when Ray Ranson headed down a pass from Dennis Tueart. I looked up and saw Paul Power making a run into the inside right channel.

"I played the ball to him and went for the return, but instead he hit a long ball to the far post where Phil Boyer had pulled away from the defence.

"I decided to keep running in the hope that Phil would knock the ball down. He produced the perfect header and I was on hand to send a low, half volley past Tony Godden.

"It was a particularly pleasing goal because we had been working in training on doing more running off the ball rather than with it."

● Golden goal-scorer Tommy Hutchison, so pleased with his 'gem' against West Brom.

Banjo plays a happy tune

Scrapbook

38 weeks to go

NOTTS County's new £600,000 winger John Chiedoie and his former Orient team mate Tunji Banjo could yet be playing in next year's World Cup Finals with Nigeria.

Nigeria are through to the semi-finals in the African section and have been kept apart from probable favourites Morocco.

Nigeria face Algeria in the two-leg semi-finals, while Morocco take on Cameroon.

Morocco are the only team with previous final experience. They reached Mexico in 1970, losing to West Germany and Peru and drawing with Bulgaria.

They are coached by the famous French striker Just Fontane who holds the World Cup Finals scoring record of 13 achieved in Sweden in 1958.

Right: Tunji Banjo in action for Orient — looking good for the World Cup finals in Spain.

CHILE charge on!

CHILE could be one of the surprise packets in the World Cup Finals... because their away performances were what really earned them a place in Spain.

Patricio Yanex, one of their likely stars, says: "Winning our group proves our determination."

"But what is special is that we have qualified on our good away results. And that is very unusual for Chile."

Chile were unbeaten in their section, winning in Paraguay and drawing in Ecuador. They defeated both countries at home.

And to underline their improvement, they have since held Brazil to a goal-less draw in Santiago.

Breitner gets Germans' vote

PAUL Breitner, the Bayern Munich midfield player, is West Germany's 'Footballer of the Year'.

He received nine of the 18 votes cast by the captains in the League in a poll conducted by a German newspaper.

Runner-up was Bayern team-mate Karl-Heinz Rummenigge with seven votes.

Italian stars' unrest is over

THE internal wrangle that threatened the Italian team and Juventus has been solved.

Problem players Marco Tardelli and Claudio Gentile have both signed new contracts.

They are both important internationals and have now got the terms they wanted — equality in pay with star men Dino Zoff and Roberto Bettega.

First for Finland

FINLAND achieved their first points of the World Cup campaign with a 2-1 home victory over Albania in Group 1.

The Finns round-off their qualifying matches next week (Sep. 23) against section favourites West Germany in Bochum.

The Germans, with maximum points from four matches, warmed-up for the task with a 2-0 friendly victory in Poland, with goals coming from Karl-Heinz Rummenigge and Klaus Fischer.

'Tough for Argentina' — admits Menotti

ARGENTINE manager Cesar Luis Menotti admits his players face a hard task in their bid to retain the World cup in Spain next year.

He says: "We will not have the effects of surprise on our side this time as we did in Argentina in 1978. And it is for that reason that we shall have to work hard on trying to find some new tricks."

He added that his squad for the recent three-match tour of Spain and Italy was very close to the one he has in mind for next summer, bar the absence of both Ardiles and Bertoni who were kept back by their clubs.

Still in Argentina, everyone has been talking about the future of national team captain Daniel Passarella.

His most likely destination is Italy and Roma when he finally leaves River Plate, the millionaire Buenos Aires outfit, but that won't happen until after the World Cup Finals.

Goal king Blokhin

OLEG Blokhin, who could be one of Russia's key men in Spain, has just become his country's greatest-ever goalscorer.

He has overtaken the record of 152 goals held by Moscow Torpedo's Alexander Ponomarev.

Milestone for Zico

BRILLIANT Brazilian star Zico, the man who grabbed the winner against England at Wembley in May, has recently totted up his 500th appearance for Flamengo.

And his goal record is pretty good too: 498 goals in 500 games.

Austrian ban

MEMBERS of the Austrian team won't be allowed to take their wives or girlfriends to the World Cup Finals in Spain.

A total ban on female company has been imposed by team manager Karl Stotz because of the team's poor performances during the last World Cup in Argentina.

Austria were last in their second round group even though they defeated defending champions West Germany in their final match. Earlier they had lost to Holland and Italy.

ENGLAND CAN LEARN FROM THE SCOTS

says Danny McGrain

Scotland skipper Danny McGrain: "It gives me no pleasure to see England struggle."

ONE point from their remaining two games will now book Scotland a place in the World Cup finals.

England meanwhile are left to sweat it out.

Why? Match writer Anthony Hawkswell put the question to tough Scotland skipper Danny McGrain and he pulled no punches with his answers . . .

Everton's Asa Hartford — a captain in midfield for Scotland, says Danny.

ENGLAND'S 'superstars' could learn a lesson from the down-to-earth Scots.

That's the view of Scotland skipper Danny McGrain, who is on the brink of leading his team to their third successive World Cup finals.

"The Scots have their feet on the ground whereas the English stars seem to believe what the newspapers write about them," said full-back Danny.

"They believe that they become 'superstars' overnight and that they only have to turn up to win."

Danny was talking after Scotland's 2-0 victory over Sweden — the day after England virtually wrote off their own chances of a place in Spain by losing 2-1 in Norway.

"England have stuttered and stammered throughout their Group Four qualifying matches and to be honest it has given me no pleasure at all watching them."

"I'd love to see all the home countries get to Spain. It's sad to see England struggling."

"They don't seem to have enough balance or consistency and perhaps they should rely on a smaller squad of players."

"I don't think it helps a national side if the manager is always chopping and changing his team. It's better to pick from a nucleus of 15 players and stick to them," added Danny.

"Our manager, Jock Stein, has proved the wisdom of sticking to basically the same side by guiding us to the brink of a finals place in Spain."

Danny paid tribute to the team which beat the Swedes so convincingly at Hampden in front of 81,000 fans.

"There was so much pressure on the players to win and win well. But they proved they were up to the challenge."

"I thought our midfield star Asa Hartford had a tremendous game — one of the best I've ever seen him play."

"The Everton man was doing a captain's role in the middle of the park."

Danny also paid tribute to AC Milan's new signing Joe Jordan: "He seems to get better and better — he took his goal ever so well."

"I was very impressed by our two young central defenders Alan Hansen and Alex McLeish. They didn't let the pressure get to them."

"The Swedes were no pushovers. Unlike many continental sides they never gave up when they went a couple of goals behind. They made us fight all the way."

"What they lacked in skill they more than made up for in hard work and pure endeavour."

The experienced Celtic skipper now believes Scotland are better prepared than ever if they reach the World Cup finals.

"I believe every player in our squad will be at the peak of their form when the finals come round. That will be the difference between now and Argentina in 1978."

"Last time many of the players were on the decline."

"Looking at our team I sometimes feel sorry for other countries. We're so small and yet we still manage to produce tremendously skilful players," he added.

Match Weekly throws the picture more agonising moments.

Right: What a clanger! Manchester City's Tommy Hutchison and goalkeeper Joe Corrigan are floored after Tommy's own goal in last season's FA Cup Final at Wembley. Gleeefully picking the ball out of the net is Spurs striker Steve Archibald.

Left: Former Everton manager Gordon Lee has his head in his hands, but at least Imre Varadi and Bob Latchford can find something to smile about as their old team concede another goal. The trio have since gone separate ways . . . Gordon to Blackburn, Bob to Swansea and Imre to Newcastle.

AGONY!

...spotlight on some of the game's

Right: The funny side has completely escaped Swindon's Billy Tucker. Perhaps it's because Roger Wyld (smiling) has just scored for Sheffield Wednesday.

Above: Oh no! Queens Park Rangers manager Terry Venables (above) can only clutch his head in despair after a mistake by his team. Also in the picture is his assistant Allan Harris.

Below: Where did I go wrong? Spurs and England star Glenn Hoddle has plenty of time to reflect after being sent off against Crystal Palace last season.

NO JOKE for JACKSON

IPSWICH Town's young central defenders, Russell Osman and Terry Butcher, were still at junior school when goalkeeper John Jackson made his last appearance in the First Division.

That was in April, 1973, when veteran John was beaten by two Francis Lee penalties as Crystal Palace said farewell to the First Division with a 3-2 win at Maine Road.

Now 39-year-old John could well be operating behind that formidable England pair as stand-in goalkeeper for Paul Cooper after a 'fairytale' move.

MATCH writer Melvyn Beck meets a man who has started to believe in fairy stories . . . at the age of 39!

Ipswich Town's 'stand-in' goalkeeper John Jackson — one minute he was facing a summer on the dole, the next he was joining one of the most successful clubs in the country.

One minute he was facing a summer on the dole after being given a free transfer by Third Division Millwall, the next he was joining one of the most successful clubs in the country.

And after 21 years in the League with Palace, Orient and Millwall, the veteran 'keeper is facing his first taste of European football.

"I thought I was a bit too old to believe in fairy stories. But after this I'm not so sure — it's just like a dream," he says.

"I must be honest and admit that I thought I didn't have much chance of continuing in League football after leaving Millwall, although I was hoping to stay in the game in some capacity.

Tonic

"I was walking round my Brighton home like a bear with a sore head when suddenly this Ipswich move came right out of the blue.

"I thought it was a joke at first, but I was finally convinced when they offered me a year's contract to cover Paul Cooper."

It was a tonic to sweeten the bitter pill John had to swallow when Millwall player-manager Peter Anderson gave him his cards at the end of last season.

"I felt I was good enough for another two years, but the manager felt I was surplus to requirements."

John had several offers from non-league clubs, but he still retained the desire to stay in League football — possibly as a player-coach.

"There were one or two things in the pipeline but nothing definite when Ipswich came in.

"With all due respect to Millwall, it's like going from one end of the spectrum to the other."
